MASTER IN THE SCIENCE OF PERFORMATIVE CREATIVITY
2ND CYCLE (2009-2011) FACT SHEET

WHO IS MSPC FOR?
For you who realise the vital importance that Creativity has in all fields of human endeavour: culture, social structures, educational and economic systems, business & management, research contexts. For you who recognise the challenges and are eager to tap the opportunities of what leading world economists are calling the new economic paradigm, the “Creativity Economy”. For you who, with a multidisciplinary European Master’s degree in the Science of Performative Creativity, would introduce yourself to the global work market with the cutting-edge portfolio of a Strategist of Creativity.

A EUROPEAN MASTER’S DEGREE
MSPC is a European Master’s degree run by the EMA-PS Programme based at the University of Malta and operating within a network of universities including the Universita di Roma “La Sapienza” and Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznan (Poland).

A MULTIDISCIPLINARY TAUGHT MASTER’S DEGREE
MSPC is a taught Master’s degree with inputs from Performer Studies, Cognitive Neurosciences, Philosophy, Cognitive Psychology, Anthropology & Ethology, Cultural Studies, Sports Sciences and Business and Management studies.

COURSE DURATION AND MOBILITY
The Programme of Studies lasts 2 years. The taught programme runs through the first 3 semesters, whilst the period between January and June of the second year will be dedicated to the students’ research projects. The first two semesters (October 2009 to June 2010) will be held at the University of Malta whilst the third semester (October to December 2010) will be held at the Universita di Roma “La Sapienza”. From January to June 2011, students will carry out their research and write their dissertations at any of the universities in the EMA-PS network, according to the fields of enquiry they would have chosen for their projects.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS & STUDENT INTAKE
The minimum entry requirements are:

1. A good first degree in any field of studies from the Sciences, Arts or Humanities.

All lectures are delivered in English.

Not more than 20 students will be admitted.

FEES
The fees for the 2nd Cycle are €3000 per year for EU students and €4000 per year for non-EU students. EU students will be entitled to an Erasmus student exchange grant for their travel to the Rome-based third semester - the usual Erasmus exchange grants conditions apply.

The programme brings together three European universities – Roma “La Sapienza”, Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznan and the University of Malta, which is the coordinating university.
