

Bachelor of Science (Honours) in Pharmaceutical Technology

Learning outcomes:

As a graduate from this programme, you will be trained and educated to work in a variety of areas related to medicines including the pharmaceutical industry, pharmaceutical and healthcare organisations.

You will be able to:

1. understand the standards required in handling medications.
2. apply chemical principles in the manufacture of medications.
3. apply communication skills required in the pharmaceutical industry and in health service provision institutions.

Skills developed:

1. accurate processing of instructions and procedures.
2. ability to completely follow written instructions and Standard Operating Procedures.
3. ability to follow rules, regulations and standards according to local, European and international requirements.
4. ability to use computer systems and to operate IT-driven processes.
5. ability to deal with details and ensure safety.
6. communication skills: active listening, speaking skills.
7. mathematical skills.
8. understanding and application of medical and pharmaceutical terminology.
9. correct handling, storage and stock maintenance of medicines.