Session 1: Gender Mainstreaming into the curriculum

After an introduction of the best practice example for the integration of gender aspects into the modular, integrated medical curriculum at Charité, we will discuss in groups on what experiences participants have with the integration into their field, what are the barriers, how they can be overcome and what methods can be used for the integration. At the end of the workshop, the participants will have suitable tools for the integration of gender aspects into a curriculum.

Session 2: Gender mainstreaming in research and in research proposals

Participants can bring the research proposal/s they are currently working on or have worked on and we can develop concrete suggestions on how to integrate gender mainstreaming into those examples. After this session the participants will have concrete ideas and a guideline on how to integrate gender aspects into their research and research proposals.

Session 3: Gender-sensitive didactics

On the basis of case examples, we work on how to use gender-sensitive didactics and apply gender sensitive language in the teaching courses. At the end of this session, participants will have acquired suitable tools for more gender sensitivity in their university teaching.

Session 4: Gender mainstreaming into faculty structures

We will discuss about the experiences of the participants of implementing gender into faculty structures, what methods can be used for the integration and how sustainable structures can be established. At the end of this session, participants will have acquired suitable tools for integrating gender into their respective faculty structures.
