

overview

The Bachelor of Music (Honours) is aimed at students wishing to pursue a professional career in music. It integrates the development of practical skills with theoretical and historical musical knowledge whilst giving students the opportunity to immerse themselves in every aspect of music.

The B. Mus (Hons) differs from the existing B.A. as it is completely dedicated to music.

Course Structure

The first year of study provides students with the foundation musical knowledge and skills for more advanced work later in the course. In their second and final years, students follow pathways in one of the following: performance, composition or musicology and ethnomusicology. The programme also includes a placement that should help students experience work in the cultural sector, particularly in the music business. In the final year, students will write and present a dissertation.

Bachelor of Music
(Honours)

B. Mus (Hons)

For more details have a look at our Programme Specifications at <http://bit.ly/2q2a7J4>

Key features

The Bachelor of Music (Hons) enables you

- ⌚ to immerse yourself in a subject you love
- ⌚ to actively perform and make music
- ⌚ to experience an exciting, global and interdisciplinary approach to the study of music
- ⌚ to cultivate a broad framework of knowledge and experience that is essential for today's musicians
- ⌚ to become an adaptable and a flexible musician with the ability to work effectively in the context of digital technologies
- ⌚ to gain new insights on music and its various relationships with culture, technology and society through the study of classical, popular and world music
- ⌚ to develop a wide range of transferrable skills, including communication, interpersonal skills, creative thinking, teamwork, leadership, planning, time-management and problem-solving experience new opportunities with a degree in Music

career prospects

A degree in music is the key to several career opportunities. There is a range of options for what a student can do with a music degree. Teaching and performing are the two most common careers in music. Other career opportunities include jobs in the recording industry, in orchestral playing and management, opportunities as freelance composers or performers, work in cultural management and administration, in the media and entertainment, or in libraries and archives, to mention a few. In addition, a degree in music is sometimes considered as an asset by employers seeking formal certification of professional training in creativity from prospective employees. Also, this B. Mus (Hons) course prepares students for postgraduate study options in music, including musicology and ethnomusicology, composition, and performance.

UNIVERSITY OF MALTA
L-Università ta' Malta

Department of Music Studies
School of Performing Arts
University of Malta
Msida MSD 2080

www.um.edu.mt

www.um.edu.mt/performingarts/music

☎ 2340 2048

✉ music.spa@um.edu.mt

Find us on 