Applied Creativity – Discover University Family Day

Sunday 10th November 2013

The Edward de Bono Institute for the Design and Development of Thinking participated in the Discover University Family Day, which took place at the University of Malta on Sunday 10th November from 10.00 to 17.00.

Visitors had the opportunity to join in a number of activities that focus on the development of everyday creativity. The range of activities was suitable for different ages and visitors engaged in creativity games and idea-generation exercises aimed at unleashing the creative potential that exists in each and every one of us. The activities took place throughout the whole day and visitors had the chance to participate at any time.

The staff and Master students involved in setting up this event promised a day of inspiring activities that helped the audience explore their creative abilities.
