Prof. Godfrey Baldacchino Ph.D. (Warwick, UK), B.A. (Gen.), PGCE, M.A.(The Hague) is a sociologist specialising in labour-management relations as well as the study of islands and small states. He is Director of the Workers’ Participation Development Centre (WPDC) and Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology, both at the University of Malta. He has served as visiting lecturer at the University of the West Indies, Barbados; the University of the South Pacific, Fiji, the Seychelles Institute of Management, the University of Iceland, the University of Mauritius and the University of Prince Edward Island, Canada. He has provided consultancy on social policy and labour law to Government, trade unions and employer associations in Malta, particularly in relation to the challenges of Malta’s eventual accession to the European Union. He serves as a core group member of the Malta-EU Steering & Action Committee. An internationally-acknowledged scholar in the study of small states and islands, Dr Baldacchino has published various articles in international refereed journals and book chapters on the unfolding of human resource themes in the context of smallness and insularity. He is the author of 6 books and co-editor of another 6, not to mention some two dozen book chapters and articles in internationally refereed journals. His books include Global Tourism and Informal Labour Relations: The Small Scale Syndrome at Work (London, Mansell, 1997), Competing Strategies of Socio-Economic Development for Small Islands (edited with Robert Greenwood, 1998) and Lessons from the Political Economy of Small Islands (edited with David Milne, 2000). Prof. Baldacchino is currently away on a long-term research appointment in Canada.
