Dear Godfrey, if I may,

I only got back from my London visit last night, but I wanted to write as soon as possible to tell you how very much I enjoyed Dream Catchers on Sunday evening. I thought your students performed superbly and that the show itself was immensely enjoyable.

Indeed, if I'm honest, the only thing which compromised my enjoyment was a feeling of regret that, when I was that age, we had no opportunity to get involved in that kind of exciting and ambitious activity.

It was good of you to invite me, as indeed it was of your Economics Department to ask me to talk to some of your students not long ago about Africa. I should conclude by saying that I value our relationship with you and that I hope that we may be able to work together again soon.

Yours sincerely
Nick Archer
