

Talking Things Over

by Maria Grech Ganado

it's run off its tracks, this train — its rails could no longer stretch parallel under a tongue too hot —

I only wanted to explain and thought we'd meet at last that way but it was warm enough, perhaps, just seeing that our lives were running close and we'd arrive as we set off together