INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON ISLANDS AND SMALL STATES

Organized by the Foundation for International Studies, Malta
in collaboration with the
Mediterranean Institute of the University of Malta
23 - 25 May 1991

The three day conference will be held in Malta with the following aims:

- (a) to undertake a comparative study of the structure and performance of small economies;
- (b) to identify and analyze obstacles relating to the economic development of small countries in view of their size and to discuss policy implications associated with same;
- (c) to discuss and develop models for islands, incorporating economic, demographic and ecological variables.
- (d) to prepare a framework for the publication of a text book on the economies of small states.

The conference will be based on the following main topics:

- viability
- dependency on international trade
- political and economic integration
- Island eco-systems
- marine environmental problems
- planning and policy

Speakers of international repute will present papers on these topics and will lead the plenary sessions. Other participants will have the opportunity to present papers and exchange views during the panel sessions.
