Hadrian Wood

A set of 11 Consular stamps was sent to Malta on 13th November 1968 (Crown Agents Req. 8/01295/01). (Ref: Andrew McClellan's - Revenue Reverend website): <http://www.revrevd.com/malta.html>

This issue comprised of the following values: 1s6d, 2s, 2s6d, 3s, 5s, 7s6d, 10s, 15s, 20s, 22s6d, and 30s.

Until recently the only stamps known to have been issued, found applied to passports, are the 20s orange and black and 30s red and black.

A 5s stamp in violet and black has now surfaced. It is found on an Identity Card issued from the Passport Office on 10th July 1970 to a Maltese student visiting Italy. This Card entitled the holder to travel between Malta and Italy for a period of two years.

The issue of this series was short lived. The change over to decimal currency on 16th May 1972 rendered these stamps invalid for further use.

VILLAGE POSTMARKS OF

MALTA 1891 - 1921

THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE POLICE POSTAL AGENCIES IN MALTA 1891

From 1st. October 1891, the Police in twenty six mainland villages were permitted to sell postage stamps, so becoming Postal Agents. It did not turn the Police Stations into Post Offices, any more than the various shops and bazaars which were (and have since been) given Postal Agencies. The Police Stations were merely authorised to sell stamps, and frank letters. They did not offer Registration, Parcel post Money and Postal Order facilities, and, if a villager had a parcel to send or a letter to Register - he had to go to the Main or nearest Branch Post Office. (It will be noted that only low value stamps are found cancelled with the village postmarks for this reason). Most of these Police Station Agencies closed in 1921 and the scarcity of the postmarks is reflected by the length of time they were in use, with those from the island of Gozo being in the main, the scarcest.

Pride without Prejudice

by
Dane Garrod

The very recent stamp series in the UK on the novels of Jane Austen bears closer scrutiny – not only for the artwork, but the cohesion displayed in the series, which highlight the major literary works of this early nineteenth century author of high repute. The British Royal Mail can take much pride, without any prejudice, on this achievement. Additionally, of course, it will enlighten a wider audience to these novels which will accordingly receive a higher readership than would have been the case without the stamp issue. A case of everyone wins – especially the reader and collector.

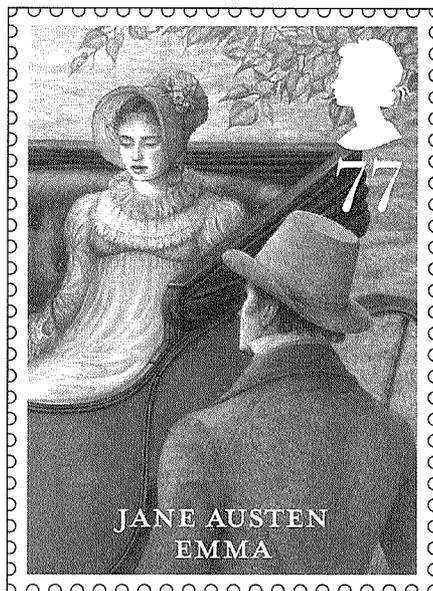

Fig.1 Emma, on the 1st class stamp

Jane Austen's house has fortunately been preserved much as she knew it, and a visit to it on a summer's day is well recommended. This writer has been twice, with years between, and the second visit was no less rewarding than the first. It exists in the winding main street of the village of Chawton, two miles south of the town of Alton, in Hampshire, England, and known as Chawton Cottage.

Although Jane Austen was an author from an extremely young age, her gift could not be fulfilled because for many years she could not find a willing publisher. This frustration and delay was to her ultimate advantage, as it allowed her skills to mature and be enhanced. All her stories are of private life and turn on personal relationships – that is their strength. Neither revolution nor war at that time is written about, as they did not inspire her, and play no part in private and domestic life. Excluding early juvenile work and poetry, her completed novels number six, and were published between 1811 and 1817. All her plots have happy endings – there are no deaths in them or scenes of violence or crime. Perhaps the better for it!

The Royal Mail set of six stamps, each portraying a scene from a different work, has these in correct order of publication and stamp face value, and we will look briefly at each stamp and what it portrays. The set is divided in to three pairs, two for 1st class post, two at 77p, and two at £1-28. Sense and Sensibility was published in 1811, when Jane was aged 36, only five years before her death at age 41. This 1st class stamp shows the Dashwood sisters, Elinor and Marianne, who are in an illuminating plot of love, romance and heartbreak, that verges on serious drama. Elinor is seen reading a letter to her younger sister, Marianne, who has neglected her health through misery. But, eventually, all ends well with marriage and happiness for both.

It can be said that Jane Austen never wrote anything better than Pride and Prejudice, presenting us with a convincing picture of ordinary life and managing at the same time to be continuously entertaining, even with an occasional touch of exuberant caricature. Centring on the story of the Bennet family with a mother of five daughters who is most concerned with the family's fortunes, the characters of the daughters are well drawn and different. The story is mainly seen through the eyes of Elizabeth Bennet, and with many twists and turns, she eventually accepts the hand in marriage of Mr Darcy – both of them previously having displayed pride and prejudice. The 1st class stamp portrays a view of Elizabeth Bennet looking at a portrait of Fitzwilliam Darcy.

In 1812, she finished Pride and Prejudice and sent it to her publisher, starting a new novel, Mansfield Park, the subject of the third stamp, and first at 77p.

Fig.3 Portrait of Jane Austen

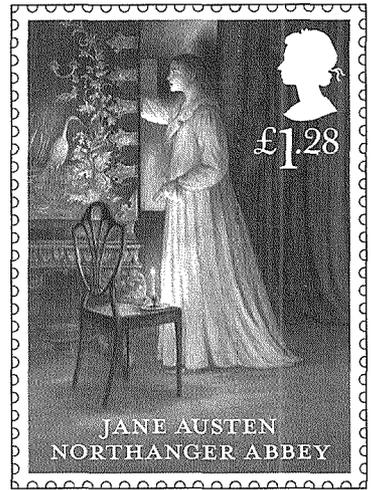

Fig.2 Northanger Abbey, on the £1-28 stamp

Written at Chawton Cottage, we have the most controversial of the six novels, with a story containing much social satire. The heroine, Fanny Price, is sent to live at Mansfield Park with a rich aunt and uncle and her four older cousins. She is considered somewhat as a poor relation, and only cousin Edmund treats her well. As ever with Jane Austen, there is a list of other characters who come and go, and through their actions, cause heartache and joy. Eventually, Edmund and Fanny realise their love for each other. The stamp shows a hesitant Fanny Price at a door in Mansfield Park.

The second 77p stamp for the 1815 published work of Emma has Emma Woodhouse sitting in a carriage being addressed by Mr George

Fig.4 Sense and Sensibility on the 1st class stamp

Knightley. High-spirited and intelligent, with a conviction she is always right, Emma vows never to marry but enjoys matchmaking for others. She finally realises she has loved Mr Knightley all along, after there have been a series of romantic mishaps on the way.

The night-time candle lit scene on the first of the £1-28 stamps is set in Northanger Abbey, where the young Catherine Morland seeks to enter the mysterious suite of rooms no one now enters. The themes of the story are the conflict of marriage for love and marriage for property, as well as the loss of imagination, innocence and good faith. Catherine sees the best in people, but learns to accept that all is not as it initially seems in life. Her character grows through the book, and she becomes a real-life heroine, learning from her mistakes in the outside world.

Finally, we have the stamp portraying Jane Austen's novel Persuasion, published in December 1817 after her death that year, but dated 1818. A widely appreciated love story that features a woman who seems destined for spinsterhood, having been persuaded by her family to break an engagement many years before as her suitor was a man of little status and no financial means. She re-encounters her lost love when she is 27 and he now a naval captain. It has been described as a second Cinderella story – a heroine generally unappreciated, exploited by others, who meets her handsome prince but initially loses out to others until all is resolved happily. She marries for love and leaves her less admirable connections behind.

Jane Austen never repeated herself and each of her books is distinguished from the others by important individual differences. All were the fruits of her past and drawn from her experience. These six works, admirably displayed by the British set of six stamps, show the perfected expression of her genius. Buy the stamps – and read the books!

The Papal Bull officially recognised the monastic community of the Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem and gave it its sovereign and independent status. The actual painting is exhibited at the National Museum of Fine Arts in Valletta. The Papal Bull is preserved in the National Library of Malta. 25,000 individually numbered miniature sheets were printed. The stamp in the sheet is 44.0mm x 31.0mm in size, with a perforation of 13.9 x 14.0 (comb), while the miniature sheet measures 120mm x 80mm. The sheets, which were designed by Edward D. On Saturday, 23 February 2013, MaltaPost plc issued a set of two stamps within a miniature sheet to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the birth of Mattia Preti, an Italian baroque artist who settled in Malta in the seventeenth century. The stamp with a denomination of €0.97 reproduces the painting by Mattia Preti showing “The Baptism of Christ”. The actual painting is found at the National Museum of Fine Arts in Valletta. The €1.87 stamp is a self-portrait of Mattia Preti. This self-portrait is in fact a detail from a larger painting. In this larger work of art, the artist portrays himself in the lower right-hand corner, wearing the red tabard of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem with the white cross prominently displayed; he stands in the presence of a majestic vision of St. John the Baptist resting in the shade of a large tree. The actual painting is currently housed at the Museo Civico di Taverna in Calabria, Italy; Taverna happens to be Preti's birthplace. The miniature sheet itself portrays the image of an angel looking upwards, a picture crafted by Preti using sanguine (red chalk) on paper. The original drawing of this "Reclining Figure of an Angel" is to be found within the Reserve Collection of the National Museum of Fine Arts in Valletta. 25,000 individually numbered miniature sheets were printed. The miniature sheet was designed by Edward D. Pirotta. The €0.97 stamp is 35mm x 35mm in size, while the €1.87 stamp is 44.0mm x 31.0mm in size, with a perforation of 13.9 x 14.0 (comb); the miniature sheet measures 120mm x 80mm. The miniature sheet was offset printed on Maltese Crosses watermarked paper by Printex Limited. MaltaPost plc prepared a special commemorative hand-stamp to cancel the stamps on the first day of issue (on FDC No. 2/2013). The hand-stamp was inscribed "MALTAPOST - ----- - MALTA/400TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE/ BIRTH OF MATTIA PRETI/24 FEBRUARY 1613/JUM IL-ĦRUĠ/23-02-13", and also featured an outline image of Mattia Preti in the centre. The MaltaPost Philatelic Bureau featured this miniature sheet in the stamp bulletin No. 307.

To mark this same anniversary, the MaltaPost Philatelic Bureau also launched a Commemorative Folder (marked Commemorative Folder No. 7), which includes an individually numbered miniature sheet, a short message by the then Prime Minister Dr Lawrence Gonzi, as well as brief write-ups about Mattia Preti himself, and about the paintings shown on the stamps and the miniature sheet. MaltaPost issued 3,000 copies of the Commemorative Folder, each individually numbered (and bearing the same number as the miniature sheet found inside). It is worth noting that the hand-stamp shown on the stamp bulletin and also on the Commemorative Folder is slightly different from that actually used in MaltaPost outlets on the first day of issue of the miniature sheet.

Together with the miniature sheet and the Commemorative Folder, MaltaPost also issued a Limited Edition Silver Replica Stamp depicting Mattia Preti's self-portrait (reproduction of the €1.87 stamp). This Silver Replica Stamp is struck in 999.0 Silver. 2,000 Silver Replica Stamps were issued. Each is individually numbered and presented in an elegant presentation box with Certificate of Authenticity.

Even though there was no official announcement of a joint issue between the Maltese and Italian postal authorities, on the same date, the Italian post office also issued a stamp to commemorate the 4th centenary of Mattia Preti's birth. This €0.70 stamp, from the series "Italian Artistic and Cultural Heritage", also depicts the same self-portrait of Mattia Preti shown on the Malta €1.87 stamp.

The postal sector reported lower activity levels in the second half of 2012, compared to the second half of 2011. Postal activity in the universal service area was down by 4.2%, with volumes falling from 21.6 million mail items to 20.7 million items. Lower activity in the universal service area was mainly attributed to a significant drop in outbound cross-border mail volumes, down by 22.6%, and a fall of 2.7% in domestic postal mail volumes. Inbound cross-border mail volumes were only up by 0.8% and not sufficient to counter the afore-mentioned declines. Postal activity in the competitive area was also down by 0.9%, with mail volumes falling to 0.3 million items. The latter figure corresponds to 1.3% of all postal mail volumes handled in the second half of 2012. Lower activity in the competitive area was attributable to lower outbound cross-border mail volumes, down by 4.3%, which outweighed a slight increase in domestic mail volumes. No change was reported for inbound cross-border mail volumes. Malta’s nominal stamp prices in 2012, for domestic standard letters and letter mail within Europe, were the lowest in the EU.

On Thursday, 9 May 2013, MaltaPost plc issued the EUROPA stamp set for 2013. This set of two stamps was themed “Postman Van”, in line with the EUROPA 2013 theme and PostEurop’s Stamp Design competition, with each of the two stamps depicting Malta’s iconic postal vans placed against a local setting. This theme was chosen by PostEurop in view of the fact that PostEurop was celebrating the 20th anniversary since it took over the management of EUROPA matters from the European Conference of Postal and Telecommunications Administration (CEPT) in 1993. The €0.37 stamp shows the Ford Transit Mark 1 Van as it made its way up Merchants Street, Valletta, in front of the former General Post Office, that was then housed in the Auberge d’Italie. The €1.19 stamp depicts the Lambretta three-wheeler as it drove down Dingli Street in Sliema. The €0.37 stamp was Malta’s entry for the Best EUROPA Stamp Competition organised by PostEurop. The stamps were offset printed on Maltese Crosses watermarked paper by Printex Limited, and were issued in sheetlets of 10 stamps each. The top two left hand spaces in each of the sheetlets of both stamp values were taken up by Cinderella labels. The corner label in each case bore the MaltaPost logo set against a grey background, while the other label in each case reproduced a photograph. In the case of the €0.37 stamps sheetlet, the photograph showed the Ford Transit Mark 1 Van parked in front of a ship, the Malta Express, a ferry owned by the Tirrenia Shipping Line, which used to service a route between Southern Italy, Sicily and Malta; in the case of the €1.19 stamps sheetlet, the photograph depicted two Lambretta three-wheelers.

200,000 copies of the €0.37 stamp and 30,000 copies of the €1.19 stamp, were printed. Stamp booklets containing five €0.37 stamps from this EUROPA set, were also issued on the same occasion. The MaltaPost Philatelic Bureau featured these stamps in the stamp bulletin No. 309. Nonetheless, results of the Company indicated an improvement in performance over the corresponding period the previous year. For the six months ended 31 March 2013, MaltaPost registered an increase in profit before tax of 27.5% to €1.0 million, compared to €0.8 million for the corresponding period the previous year. Turnover increased by 2.5% to €11.3 million. Traditional mail volumes registered a marginal decrease. The decline in volumes was partly mitigated by the review in tariffs of certain services effective mid-November 2012. Expenses increased marginally by 1.4% to €10.4 million. Net finance income increased to €125,000. Cost-to-Income Ratio stood at 87.6%. Shareholders’ funds increased by 2.9% to €16.0 million. The highly competitive market called for the Company to expand and diversify its portfolio of services. The introduction of ‘SendOn’ proved a success, and was expected to be followed by other enhanced services complementing the growing e-commerce market. The Company was also entering the insurance sector once the necessary regulatory approvals were issued. The Company was also in the process of finalising the necessary investment for the expansion of services in connection with document management and hybrid mail.

MCA/C/13-1624) – ‘Market Review for the Postal Sector: Letter Mail Markets – Identification and Analysis of Markets, Determination of Market Power and Setting of Remedies’. The Postal Regulatory Framework and the Postal Services (General) Regulations require the MCA to define the boundaries of the relevant postal services markets appropriate to national circumstances. The MCA in fact identified the following postal services markets: Market 1 (Domestic Single Piece Letter Mail Market); Market 2 (Outbound Single Piece Letter Mail Market); Market 3 (Domestic Registered Letter Mail Market); Market 4 (Outbound Registered Letter Mail Market); Market 5 (Domestic Bulk Letter Mail Market); Market 6 (Outbound Bulk Letter Mail Market); Market 7 (Domestic Parcel Post Market); and Market 8 (Outbound Parcel Post Market). The MCA then analysed these markets to assess whether any operator had significant market power (SMP) as defined in, and required by, Regulation 64 of the Postal Services Regulations. Following its analysis, the MCA concluded that MaltaPost had significant market power in all the letter mail markets identified in this review. In view of this, the MCA was imposing the following remedies: (1) obligation to provide services at cost-oriented prices; (2) obligation of non-discrimination; (3) obligation of provision of services on an unbundled basis; (4) approval and publication of tariffs; and (5) accounting separation. The purpose of the document was to determine the Quality of Service (QoS) measurements and related performance targets to be achieved by MaltaPost for the universal service covering the period October 2013 – September 2016. In addition to the setting of the revised QoS targets, this document also updated the information and reporting requirements with respect to performance monitoring and complaints handling. On the 11 September 2013, the Malta Communications Authority (MCA) published the “Consumer Bi-Annual Report – January – June 2013” (doc. MCA/R/13 – 1694). One of the main objectives of the MCA is to ensure a high level of protection for end-users in the electronic communications, postal and e-commerce sectors. In the first half of 2013, the MCA received a total of 143 complaints and 146 enquiries in all. This report provided an analysis of these complaints and enquiries and also provided information on enforcement actions and related monitoring activities undertaken by the MCA during this period. With specific reference to the postal sector, the MCA regulates this sector and ensures that postal services are available throughout the Maltese Islands. The MCA handles complaints related to postal services and seeks to provide redress when end-users encounter any difficulties. In April 2013, the price of local mail items weighing 50 grams or less increased from €0.20c to €0.26c (taxes included). This resulted in greater demand for €0.06c stamps (or denominations amounting to €0.06c). Following claims received by the MCA regarding the shortage of such stamps from MaltaPost’s branches, the MCA conducted mystery shopping exercises to ensure that such stamps were available and required MaltaPost to immediately address any shortcomings. End-users requesting significant supplies of these stamps were encouraged to contact MaltaPost before visiting any of its branches. Furthermore, those encountering any difficulties were asked to contact the MCA after having filed their claim with MaltaPost directly. Other claims received related to re-direction of mail and delivery of regular and registered mail. The MCA ensured that MaltaPost provided the necessary redress to end-users where appropriate.

scope of the universal service would be required to pay, on an annual basis, 1.5% of the total gross revenue from postal services within the scope of the universal service, or €5,000, whichever is the higher. Postal operators authorised by way of a general authorisation to provide only postal services which are outside the scope of the universal service would be required to continue to pay, on an annual basis, €150, provided that a postal operator whose annual gross revenue does not exceed €24,300 would be exempt from the payment of such a fee. The MCA proposed that the authorisation fee structure would come into effect as from the 1 January 2014. Initially, this consultation was to run from the 16 September to the 14 October 2013; however, following a request from an interested party, the MCA granted an extension to the deadline for the submission of responses, up till the 21 October 2013.
