

Part B – Textual intervention(25 marks)Answer only ONE question.1. 'The Merchant of Venice' by William Shakespeare

Read the excerpt below taken from Act 2 Scene 5 and answer the question that follows. The excerpt includes both the original text and the modern text.

Shylock What, are there masques? Hear you me, Jessica. Lock up my doors, and when you hear the drum And the vile squealing of the wry-necked fife, Clamber not you up to the casements then, Nor thrust your head into the public street To gaze on Christian fools with varnished faces. But stop my house's ears—I mean my casements— Let not the sound of shallow foppery enter My sober house. By Jacob's staff, I swear, I have no mind of feasting forth tonight. But I will go.—Go you before me, sirrah. Say I will come.	Shylock What, there's going to be a masquerade? Listen to me, Jessica, lock my doors up, and when you hear the drum and the nasty squealing of the flute, don't climb up to the windows. Don't stick your head out into the public street to stare at the Christian fools with painted faces. Block up my house's ears – I mean the windows. Don't let the noise of shallow fools enter my serious house. I swear, I'm in no mood to go out to dinner tonight, but I'll go anyway. – Launcelot, go tell them I'll come.

In the above excerpt, Shylock tells Jessica to lock the house before leaving for the masquerade dinner.

Write a scene in which Shylock changes his mind and returns home to find Jessica dressed as a boy eloping with Lorenzo. The scene should consider the following points:

- Shylock's reaction on seeing his daughter's betrayal;
- Jessica's reaction on being caught in action;
- father and daughter relationship.

The scene should be written in modern English.

3. 'Wild Girl, Wild Boy' by David Almond

Read the excerpt below and answer the question that follows.

SCENE FOUR IN THE ALLOTMENT

Elaine is in the allotment. She keeps reaching to the earth, pushing undergrowth aside, searching.

Elaine No fairy. No fairy. No fairy.
No fairy. Daddy! Daddy! Daddy!

She catches a seed in mid-air. She spits at it.

Elaine Grow like mushroom, grow like magic, grow like happiness in the heart.

*She spits at it again, plants it in the earth, puts horse muck on it.
She blinks her eyes fast.*

Elaine Grow like mushroom. Grow like magic. Grow like happiness in the heart. One two three four five six seven eight... Daddy!

In the above excerpt, Elaine deeply misses her father and she uses a seed to try and bring him back to life.

Suppose that Dad really comes momentarily back to life to talk to Elaine. Write an extension to this scene involving these two characters. The extension should consider the following points:

- how Dad reacts when he sees Elaine feeling so sad;
- Elaine's feelings when she sees her Dad again;
- how they part ways.

4. 'A View from The Bridge' by Arthur Miller

Read the excerpt below taken from Act 2 and answer the question that follows.

Eddie (in a driving fright and anger) Why! How do you know they're not trackin' these guys? They'll come up for them and find Marco and Rodolpho! Get them out of the house!

Beatrice But they been here so long already –

Eddie How do you know what enemies Lipari's got? Which they'd love to stab him in the back?

Catherine Well what'll I do with them?

Eddie The neighborhood is full of rooms. Can't you stand to live a couple of blocks away from him? Get them out of the house!

Catherine Well maybe tomorrow night I'll –

Eddie Not tomorrow, do it now. Catherine, you never mix yourself with somebody else's family! These guys get picked up, Lipari's liable to blame you or me and we got his whole family on our head. They got a temper, that family.

Two men in overcoats appear outside, start into the house.

Catherine How'm I gonna find a place tonight?

Eddie Will you stop arguin' with me and get them out! You think I'm always tryin' to fool you or sump'm? What's the matter with you, don't you believe I could think of your good? Did I ever ask sump'm for myself? You think I got no feelin's? I never told you nothin' in my life that wasn't for your good. Nothin'! And look at the way you talk to me! Like I was an enemy! Like I – (A knock on the door. His head swerves. They all stand motionless. Another knock. Eddie, in a whisper, pointing upstage.) Go up the fire escape, get them out over the back fence.

Catherine stands motionless, uncomprehending.

First Officer (in the hall) Immigration! Open up in there!

Suppose Lipari got to know about Eddie snitching to the Immigration Bureau and he is the one knocking on the door instead of the First Officer.

Continue this part of 'A View from The Bridge' (including stage directions and dialogue), by considering the following points:

- Lipari's actions and reaction;
- Eddie's reaction;
- the tension between the characters.

5. 'The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time' (play) by Simon Stephens

Read the excerpt below from Part 2 and answer the question that follows.

Judy You never wrote to me.

Christopher I know.

Judy Why didn't you write to me, Christopher? I wrote you all those letters. I kept thinking something dreadful had happened or you'd moved away and I'd never find out where you were.

Christopher Father said you were dead.

Judy What?

Christopher He said you went into hospital because you had something wrong with your heart. And then you had a heart attack and died.

Judy Oh my God.

Judy starts to howl.

Christopher Why are you doing that?

Judy Oh Christopher, I'm so sorry.

Christopher What for?

Judy Christopher let me hold your hand. Just for once. Just for me. Will you? I won't hold it hard.

Christopher I don't like people holding my hand.

Write a diary entry by Christopher's mother when she realises that Christopher is not answering her letters. You should consider the following points:

- how she is feeling not getting a reply;
- what she thinks may have happened to Christopher;
- whether she thinks she made the right decision leaving.

SECTION B – Unseen Prose(Total: | 30 marks)

It is recommended that you spend 35 minutes on this section.

Read the excerpt and answer ALL the questions below.

The following excerpt is adapted from 'The Secret Book of Frida Kahlo: A Novel' by F. G. Haghenbeck.

That night in July wasn't like any other; the rains had gone, leaving a starry sky free of careless clouds, weeping tears on the city's residents. Occasionally, a slight breeze whistled like a mischievous child playing in the trees surrounding the imposing blue house, slumbering in the warm summer night. (para 1)

It was precisely on this quiet summer eve that constant drumming rolled through every corner of the Coyoacán neighbourhood. A horse's hooves clip-clopped against the cobblestone streets. The echo of its steps rang out on every corner and in front of the tall tile-roofed homes to warn residents of the visiting stranger. (para 2)

The residents of Coyoacán interrupted their suppers to peek at the mysterious rider who came in on a cool summer breeze more appropriate to the dead or apparitions. A mad dog barked at the stranger, which didn't bother the beautiful white steed, much less its driver; a sullen horseman dressed in brown with holsters bearing loaded guns crisscrossing his chest. His large straw hat was like a church dome, completely obscuring his face. The only things visible through the shadows were his startling bright eyes and a thick moustache that extended beyond the sides of his face. As he rode by, the elders double-locked, bolted, and barred their doors; they still had fearful memories of the Revolution, when the strangers brought ruin and desolation. (para 3)

The horseman came to a stop at the corner of Londres Street, in front of an indigo house whose all-cobalt façade made it stand out in the neighbourhood. The windows looked like giant eyelids on either side of the door. The horse was a bit nervous but calmed down when the man dismounted and tenderly petted its neck. After adjusting his hat and holsters, the stranger swaggered towards the door and pulled the cord to ring the bell. An electric light flicked on and the entire entryway was immediately lit up, revealing an army of moths humming desperately about the spotlight. When Chucho, the houseboy indispensable to any respectable home, stuck his head out and saw the visitor, the man stared straight at him and took a step. Trembling, the houseboy let him in after crossing himself several times and murmuring a few Hail Marys. Without a word, the visitor crossed the hall with giant strides until he reached a marvellous courtyard decorated with artisanal furniture, exotic plants, and pre-Columbian idols. The house was full of contrasts. Objects reminiscent of painful and happy memories, of past dreams and current nightmares, all managed to coexist. Everything spoke of the private world of the owner who waited for the caller in her room. (para 4)

This question continues on next page.

1. Underline the correct answer:
 The setting in the first paragraph is:
- a. A lively city with heavy traffic and light rain.
 - b. A peaceful night with stars in the sky and a gentle wind.

5. What is revealed about the owner of the house from the description of the interior?
- a. Her house reflects a perfect life.
 - b. Her collection reflects her ups and downs in life.
 - c. She enjoys collecting objects which remind her of happy times. (1)

SECTION C – Comparative task of two set poems(Total: | 30 marks)

It is recommended that you spend 35 minutes on this section.

Two poems by James Reeves, 'The Sea' and 'Fireworks', have been selected for the purpose of a comparative exercise.

Both poems are reproduced here for ease of reference.

'The Sea' by James Reeves	'Fireworks' by James Reeves
The sea is a hungry dog, Giant and grey. He rolls on the beach all day. With his clashing teeth and shaggy jaws Hour upon hour he gnaws The rumbling, tumbling stones, And 'Bones, bones, bones, bones!' The giant sea-dog moans, Licking his greasy paws. And when the night wind roars And the moon rocks in the stormy cloud, He bounds to his feet and snuffs and sniffs, Shaking his wet sides over the cliffs, And howls and hollos long and loud. But on quiet days in May or June, When even the grasses on the dune Play no more their reedy tune, With his head between his paws He lies on the sandy shores, So quiet, so quiet, he scarcely snores.	They rise like sudden fiery flowers That burst upon the night, Then fall to earth in burning showers Of crimson, blue and white. Like buds too wonderful to name, Each miracle unfolds And Catherine wheels begin to flame Like whirling marigolds. Rockets and Roman candles make An orchard of the sky, Where magic trees their petals shake Upon each gazing eye.

Answer both Part A and Part B

You are advised to spend about 30 minutes on Part A and about 20 minutes on Part B.

Part A

(22 marks)

Read the poem and answer the questions below.

My Box

My box is made of golden oak,
my lover's gift to me.
He fitted hinges¹ and a lock of brass and a bright key.
5 He made it out of winter nights,
sanded and oiled and planed²,
engraved inside the heavy lid
in brass, a golden tree.

10 In my box are twelve black books
where I have written down
how we have sanded, oiled and planed,
planted a garden, built a wall,
seen jays³ and goldcrests⁴, rare red kites⁵,
found the wild heartsease⁶, drilled a well,
15 harvested apples and words and days
and planted a golden tree.

On an open shelf I keep my box.
Its key is in the lock.
I leave it there for you to read,
20 or them when we are dead,
how everything is slowly made,
how slowly things made me,
a tree, a lover, words, a box,
books and a golden tree.

Gillian Clarke

- 1 a piece of metal that fastens the lid to the box
2 the work involved in finishing a wooden surface with special tools
3 4 5 types of birds
6 a type of wildflower

- _____ (2)

This question continues on next page.

b. Why does the speaker leave the box 'on an open shelf' (line 17) for 'them' (line 20) to read?

(3)

Part B

(18 marks)

Compare 'My Box' by Gillian Clarke and 'Valentine' by Carol Ann Duffy. The poem is reproduced below for ease of reference.

Valentine

Not a red rose or a satin heart.

I give you an onion.

It is a moon wrapped in brown paper.

It promises light

like the careful undressing of love.

Here.

It will blind you with tears

like a lover.

It will make your reflection

a wobbling photo of grief.

I am trying to be truthful.

Not a cute card or a kissogram.

I give you an onion.

Its fierce kiss will stay on your lips,

possessive and faithful

as we are,

for as long as we are.

Take it.

Its platinum loops shrink to a wedding ring,

if you like.

Lethal.

Its scent will cling to your fingers,

cling to your knife.

Carol Ann Duffy

8. Read the statements below about both poems and underline the TWO correct ones. (2)

- a. 'Valentine' is about the real aspects of love while 'My Box' talks about the effort needed to build a relationship.
- b. 'Valentine' celebrates romantic gestures while 'My Box' criticises all relationships.
- c. 'Valentine' describes the beauty of nature, while 'My Box' describes how a box is made.
- d. 'Valentine' criticises the superficial aspects of love while 'My Box' explores themes of love and relationships.
- e. 'Valentine' narrates a story while 'My Box' deals with environmental problems.

9. The two poems have different views of love. Tick (✓) the correct statement under each column. (4)

		My Box	Valentine
a.	It needs a lot of effort
b.	It is realistic and harsh
c.	It is built on shared memories
d.	It takes time to grow

10. Consider how the use of literary devices in both poems helps the reader understand the poem better by underlining the correct answers in the grid below. (6)

My Box	Valentine
a. The main literary device used in this poem is (simile/metaphor/alliteration).	a. The main literary device used in this poem is (personification/simile/metaphor).
b. In this poem, this literary device is represented by (a tree/a box/a locket).	b. In this poem, this literary device is represented by (an onion/a heart/a rose).
c. This symbolises the: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. fragile nature of relationships. ii. effort needed to build a relationship. iii. temporary nature of love. 	c. This symbolises the: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. complexity of love ii. sweetness of love iii. simplicity of love

11. The two poems are written in different forms to reflect the message the poets want to express. Fill in the blanks with words from the box below. There are two extra words in the box. (6)

effort	realistic	repetitive	free
regular	power	rhyme	stable

where I have written down
how we have sanded, oiled and planed,
planted a garden, built a wall,
seen jays³ and goldcrests⁴, rare red kites⁵,
found the wild heartsease⁶, drilled a well,
15 harvested apples and words and days
and planted a golden tree.

On an open shelf I keep my box.
Its key is in the lock.
I leave it there for you to read,
20 or them when we are dead,
how everything is slowly made,
how slowly things made me,
a tree, a lover, words, a box,
books and a golden tree.

Compare and contrast 'My Box' by Gillian Clarke and 'Sonnet LX' by William Shakespeare.

The answer should include:

- a comment on the possible purpose and audience of both poems;
- a comment on the viewpoints adopted in the two poems;
- a comment on the poet's choice of words, phrases and poetic devices used in the two poems;
- an explanation of how form and structure are used in the two different poems;
- your personal conclusion to the two poems by using evidence from the texts;
- use of quotations/paraphrasing when providing evidence from the text.

The poem is reproduced here below for ease of reference.

Sonnet LX

Like as the waves make towards the pebbled shore,
So do our minutes hasten to their end;
Each changing place with that which goes before,
In sequent toil all forwards do contend.
Nativity, once in the main of light,
Crawls to maturity, wherewith being crown'd,
Crooked eclipses 'gainst his glory fight,
And Time that gave doth now his gift confound.
Time doth transfix the flourish set on youth
And delves the parallels in beauty's brow,
Feeds on the rarities of nature's truth,
And nothing stands but for his scythe to mow:
And yet to times in hope, my verse shall stand
Praising thy worth, despite his cruel hand.

1. 'Macbeth' by William ShakespeareAct 3 Scene 1

In this extract, Banquo reflects on the fulfilment of the witches' prophecies.

Enter Banquo

BANQUO Thou hast it now—king, Cawdor, Glamis, all
As the weird women promised, and I fear
Thou played'st most foully for 't. Yet it was said
It should not stand in thy posterity,
But that myself should be the root and father
Of many kings. If there come truth from them—
(As upon thee, Macbeth, their speeches shine)—
Why, by the verities on thee made good,
May they not be my oracles as well,
And set me up in hope? But hush, no more.

Sennet sounded. Enter Macbeth as King, Lady Macbeth, Lennox, Ross, Lords, and Attendants

MACBETH Here's our chief guest.

LADY MACBETH If he had been forgotten,
It had been as a gap in our great feast
And all-thing unbecoming.

MACBETH Tonight we hold a solemn supper, sir,
And I'll request your presence.

BANQUO Let your Highness
Command upon me, to the which my duties
Are with a most indissoluble tie
Forever knit.

3. 'Wild Girl, Wild Boy' and 'Skellig' by David Almond

In the extract from 'Wild Girl, Wild Boy', Elaine is in her bedroom and is talking to Wild Boy.

In the extract from 'Skellig', Michael and Mina try to persuade Skellig to leave the garage, which is set to be demolished.

'Wild Girl, Wild Boy'

Elaine's bedroom. Night. The moon shines in through the window.

Elaine is at the table. Wild Boy sits on the table.

ELAINE Larks soar against the sun by day, bats flicker flack against the moon by night. You see them, Wild Boy? Flicker flack, wild wings in the night. Say my name. Elaine. E-laine.

WILD BOY e-ay

Elaine shows him a drawing of the moon, then points at the window and the moon.

ELAINE That's the moon, Wild Boy. That's the moon that lights the night and pulls the seas and drives us wild. Mooooon.

WILD BOY Ooooooo!

Elaine shakes the seedhead. She starts to yell and sing. She draws Wild Boy into the dance. He weirdly sings and yells along with her.

'Skellig'

MICHAEL You've got to leave here. They're going to pull it all down. Tomorrow.

MINA We can help you. There's somewhere we could take you. It's safer there. You could just sit there dying too, if that's really what you want.

SKELLIG More beer.

MICHAEL One of these as well.

Michael helps Skellig to drink. He drops a cod-liver oil capsule onto Skellig's tongue. Skellig gags.

MINA You have to let us help you.

4. 'The Merchant of Venice' by William Shakespeare

Act 1 Scene 3

In this extract, Shylock shows Antonio's hatred for him reflecting the prejudice of the time.

SHYLOCK Signor Antonio, many a time and oft
 In the Rialto you have rated me
 About my moneys and my usances.
 Still have I borne it with a patient shrug,
 For sufferance is the badge of all our tribe.
 You call me misbeliever, cutthroat dog,
 And spet upon my Jewish gaberdine—
 And all for use of that which is mine own.
 Well then, it now appears you need my help.
 Go to, then! You come to me and you say,
 "Shylock, we would have moneys." You say so!—
 You, that did void your rheum upon my beard
 And foot me as you spurn a stranger cur
 Over your threshold! Moneys is your suit.
 What should I say to you? Should I not say,
 "Hath a dog money? Is it possible
 A cur can lend three thousand ducats?" Or Shall I bend low, and in a bondman's key
 With bated breath and whispering humbleness
 Say this:
 "Fair sir, you spet on me on Wednesday last;
 You spurned me such a day; another time
 You called me 'dog'—and for these courtesies
 I'll lend you thus much moneys?"

Starting with this extract, explore how the complex relationships between the characters reveal prejudice and ridicule in the play.

Act 1

In this extract, Beatrice tries to help Catherine understand what she wants to do with her life.

They enter the apartment. The lights in the living room have risen and Beatrice is there. She looks past the sobbing Catherine at Eddie, who in the presence of his wife, makes an awkward gesture of eroded command, indicating Catherine.

EDDIE Why don't you straighten her out?

BEATRICE (inwardly angered at his flowing emotion, which in itself alarms her) When are you going to leave her alone?

EDDIE B, the guy is no good!

BEATRICE (suddenly, with open fright and fury) You are going to leave her alone? Or you gonna drive me crazy? (He turns, striving to retain his dignity, but nevertheless in guilt walks out of the house, into the street and away. Catherine starts into a bedroom). Listen, Catherine. (Catherine halts, turns to her sheepishly). What are you going to do with yourself?

CATHERINE I don't know.

BEATRICE Don't tell me you don't know; you're not a baby any more, what are you going to do with yourself?

CATHERINE He won't listen to me.

BEATRICE I don't understand this. He's not your father, Catherine. I don't understand what's going on here.

CATHERINE (as one who herself is trying to rationalize a buried impulse) What am I going to do, just kick him in the face with it?

BEATRICE Look, honey, you wanna get married, or don't you wanna get married? What are you worried about, Katie?

CATHERINE (quietly trembling) I don't know, B. It just seems wrong if he's against it so much.

Starting with this extract, explore how Beatrice supports Catherine in A View from the Bridge.

EITHER1. 'Listen to the Moon' by Michael Morpurgo*Chapter Four

In this extract, the people living on Bryher are reacting to the news of Lucy's arrival on the island.

"Caught any mermaids today, have you, Jim?" He tried to laugh them off, to remain good-humoured about it all, but he was finding that harder by the day. And he was becoming more concerned about Mary. She was looking tired out these days, and not her usual spirited self at all. He'd tried to suggest, gently, that she might be taking on too much with Lucy Lost, that surely she had enough to do caring for Uncle Billy, that maybe they should think again about Lucy, and find someone else to look after her. But she wouldn't hear of it.

Alfie too, as time passed, was being given more and more of a hard time over Lucy Lost. Every day at school, he found himself being quizzed, by teachers and children alike, and teased too.

2. 'Animal Farm' by George Orwell

Chapter Three

In this extract, the pigs have started taking the milk and apples for themselves, which upsets the other animals, so they send Squealer, their spokesperson, to justify their actions.

'Comrades!' he cried. 'You do not imagine, I hope, that we pigs are doing this in a spirit of selfishness and privilege? Many of us actually dislike milk and apples. I dislike them myself. Our sole object in taking these things is to preserve our health. Milk and apples (this has been proved by Science, comrades) contain substances absolutely necessary to the well-being of a pig. We pigs are brain-workers. The whole management and organization of this farm depends on us. Day and night we are watching over your welfare. It is for your sake that we drink that milk and eat those apples. Do you know what would happen if we failed in our duty? Jones would come back! Surely, comrades,' cried Squealer almost pleadingly, skipping from side to side and whisking his tail, 'surely there is no one among you who wants to see Jones come back?'

Now if there was one thing that the animals were completely certain of, it was that they did not want Jones back. When it was put to them in this light, they had no more to say. The importance of keeping the pigs in good health was all too obvious. So it was agreed without further argument that the milk and the windfall apples (and also the main crop of apples when they ripened) should be reserved for the pigs alone.

3. 'The Boy in the Striped Pyjamas' by John Boyne

Chapter Five

In this extract, Bruno and his family begin their journey to Auschwitz, with Bruno noticing the stark contrast between the two trains at the station, highlighting the different experiences of their passengers.

The official car with the flags on the front had taken them to a train station, where there were two tracks separated by a wide platform, and on either side a train stood waiting for the passengers to board. Because there were so many soldiers marching about on the other side, not to mention the fact there was a long hut belonging to a signalman separating the tracks, Bruno could only make out the crowds of people for a few moments before he and his family boarded a very comfortable train with very few people on it and plenty of empty seats and fresh air when the windows were pulled down. If the trains had been going in different directions, he thought, it wouldn't have seemed so odd, but they weren't; they were both pointed eastwards. For a moment he considered running across the platform to tell people about the empty seats in his carriage, but he decided not to as something told him that if it didn't make Mother angry, it would probably make Gretel furious, and that would be worse still.

4. 'A Christmas Carol' by Charles Dickens

Stave 5

In this extract Scrooge greets Bob Cratchit the morning after Christmas Day.

'Now, I'll tell you what, my friend,' said Scrooge. 'I am not going to stand this sort of thing any longer. And therefore,' he continued, leaping from his stool, and giving Bob such a dig in the waistcoat that he staggered back into the tank again—'and therefore I am about to raise your salary!'

Bob trembled, and got a little nearer to the ruler. He had a momentary idea of knocking Scrooge down with it, holding him, and calling to the people in the court for help and a strait-waistcoat.

A merry Christmas, Bob!' said Scrooge, with an earnestness that could not be mistaken, as he clapped him on the back. 'A merrier Christmas, Bob, my good fellow, than I have given you for many a year! I'll raise your salary, and endeavour to assist your struggling family, and we will discuss your affairs this very afternoon, over a Christmas bowl of smoking bishop, Bob! Make up the fires and buy another coal-scuttle before you dot another i, Bob Cratchit!'

Scrooge was better than his word. He did it all, and infinitely more; and to Tiny Tim, who did NOT die, he was a second father. He became as good a friend, as good a master, and as good a man as the good old City knew, or any other good old city, town, or borough in the good old world. Some people laughed to see the alteration in him, but he let them laugh, and little heeded them; for he was wise enough to know that nothing ever happened on this globe, for good, at which some people did not have their fill of laughter in the outset; and knowing that such as these would be blind anyway, he thought it quite as well that they should wrinkle up their eyes in grins as have the malady in less attractive forms. His own heart laughed, and that was quite enough for him.

5. 'Stories Then and Now' by Brian Hawthorn'Lamb to the Slaughter' by Roald Dahl

In the extract below Mrs Maloney is returning home from the grocery shop after having bought some vegetables.

'Good night, Mrs Maloney. And thank you.'

And now, she told herself as she hurried back, all she was doing now, she was returning home to her husband and he was waiting for his supper; and she must cook it good, and make it as tasty as possible because the poor man was tired; and if, when she entered the house, she happened to find anything unusual, or tragic, or terrible, then naturally it would be a shock and she'd become frantic with grief and horror. Mind you, she wasn't expecting to find anything. She was just going home with the vegetables. Mrs Patrick Maloney going home with the vegetables on Thursday evening to cook supper for her husband.

That's the way, she told herself. Do everything right and natural and there'll be no need for acting at all.

Therefore, when she entered the kitchen by the back door, she was humming a little tune to herself and smiling.

'Patrick!' she called. 'How are you, darling?'

She put the parcel down on the table and went through into the living-room; and when she saw him lying down there on the floor with his legs doubled up and one arm twisted back underneath his body, it really was rather a shock. All the old love and longing for him welled up inside her, and she ran over to him, knelt down beside him, and began to cry her heart out. It was easy. No acting was necessary.

A few minutes later she got up and went to the phone. She knew the number of the police station, and when the man at the other end answered, she cried to him, 'Quick! Come quick! Patrick's dead!'
